

Workforce Availability

You need to know:

- Where should I consider opening a new business based on workforce availability and necessary skillsets?
- What wages should I pay my employees to be competitive?
- What training programs are available in the region to advance my employees' skills?

What we can do:

- Identify the number and skill-level of available workers surrounding business sites
- Provide percentile and median salaries for occupations within a region
- Identify regional educational programs to prepare your employees for career advancement
